

ACADEMIC OPPORTUNITIES

Learning happens inside and outside of the traditional classroom.

The value of a rich liberal arts tradition extends beyond the curriculum itself to the far reaches of cutting edge research and real-world internships, community partnerships and study abroad.

- Penn is a world-class research institution where undergraduates have the opportunity to participate in the creation of knowledge.
- Students in the College integrate knowledge from a variety of specializations or dig deeply into a particular area of study.
- Through their work with local schools and organizations, students in Academically Based Community Service Courses combine classroom and community work to solve critical issues.
- Students in study abroad programs and internship experience diverse communities and real world challenges in and outside of Philadelphia.

Visit the College website (<https://www.college.upenn.edu/courses-options/>) for a comprehensive view of academic opportunities for College students.