

AUDITING

Undergraduate students cannot officially audit courses; however, subject to the approval of the instructor, students may be permitted to sit in on some courses without registering. These courses will not appear on students' records. Not all departments or schools allow this type of informal audit.