

ENGLISH: POETRY AND POETICS, BA

The Concentration in Poetry and Poetics is for students interested in the forms, theories, histories and practices of poetry. What makes a poem a poem? What are its cultural uses? Its formal and material determinants? Its relations and obligations to other kinds of speech and writing, other forms of expression and art? What notions of poet and audience inform its production and reception? All students adopting this Concentration will take English 1800: Poetry and Poetics. Additionally, all students of Poetry and Poetics will study the history of the poem in English, choosing from offerings in the 20th century and earlier. Students will find it possible to study Elizabethan love sonnets and Beat political manifestos; Augustan satire and American poetry of the natural world; Medieval songs and Native American chant; hip hop and odes. In addition, students will find many relevant offerings in departments outside English.

Total Course Units 33

1

You will need to take one course to fulfill each sector of the Major Core, six in total. Two of these courses may double-count with your Literature Seminar Electives. Creative Writing Seminars cannot count in the Major Core.

2

The One Series seminar (TOS) cannot double-count in the Major Core. However, if you take a second TOS course, your additional TOS may count as a Literature Seminar or an Elective.

3

These Early-Period Seminars may NOT double-count in the Core.

4

These Seminar Electives may be double-counted in the Core.

5

The rest of your 13 c.u. for the English Major will be met with Electives. If none of your seminars are being double-counted in the Core, you will only need two Electives. For each double-counting course, you will need to add an Elective, for a maximum of four, to reach 13 c.u. With the approval of your Major Advisor, you may count up to two courses outside of English toward the Major. Courses in Linguistics (LING) and in Literatures not in English may count; in the case of Non-English Literatures, the courses should ideally be crosslisted ("Also offered As") with ENGL, or you may obtain the permission from your Major advisor.

6

Concentration may be comprised from the 13 c.u. of the Major, or other courses.
